Healthcare Futurist Jack Uldrich to Keynote Two Hospital Association Events in October

Acclaimed healthcare futurist and best-selling author, Jack Uldrich has been selected to deliver two keynote presentations to the Arkansas and Arizona hospital associations in October. Uldrich will focus on future trends in healthcare and discuss the need for senior healthcare leaders to embrace the concept of "unlearning."

Jack Uldrich

Before addressing future trends, my primary responsibility as a futurist and change agent is to help healthcare leaders clearly see the extraordinary developments taking place in their industry today. Washington, D.C. (PRWEB) September 24, 2013

Popular keynote speaker, healthcare futurist, and best-selling author, Jack Uldrich has been selected to deliver three keynote sessions to hospital associations across the country. On October 10, 2013, Uldrich will keynoting the Arkansas Hospital Association's annual meeting in Little Rock, Arkansas where he'll be discussing "Why Future Trends in Healthcare Will Require Unlearning." Later in the month, Uldrich be discussing key technological trends in health care with members of the Arizona Hospital Association in Phoenix on October 23.

The presentations, based on Uldrich's two most recent books: "Foresight 20/20: A Futurist Explores the Trends Transforming Tomorrow" and "Higher Unlearning: 39 Post Requisite Lessons for Achieving a Successful Future" as well as his popular article, "Top Ten Trends in Healthcare," will begin by discussing how continued advances in information technologies, biotechnology, nanotechnology, robotics, radio frequency identification (RFID) technology, genomics, regenerative medicine and social networking will radically transform healthcare in the decade ahead. (A video of Mr. Uldrich discussing future trends can be viewed here.)

Uldrich will then focus on why these trends will demand unlearning and discuss why participants must embrace the concept of unlearning in order to achieve future success. Uldrich, who has been hailed as "America's Chief Unlearning Officer," will conclude by reviewing specific habits, customs, beliefs and ideas that healthcare professionals can—and must—unlearn. Throughout his talks, he will use vivid analogies and memorable stories, drawn from a wide spectrum of industries, to ensure his message of unlearning "sticks" with his audiences. In the past year, Uldrich has addressed dozens of healthcare associations and hospitals, including the Alcetel-Lucent/Verizon Forum on Wireless Healthcare, IASIS Healthcare, Allina Hospitals, The Healthcare Trustees of New York, The Iowa Healthcare Collaborative, Care Providers of Minnesota, St. Jude Medical, Fairview Hospitals, University Hospitals & Health System of Ohio, and healthcare associations in Colorado, Illinois, Kansas, Maine, Maryland, Minnesota, Mississippi, Montana, Nebraska, Tennessee, Utah and Wisconsin. He has also addressed a number of major, non-health-care-related corporations on the topic of unlearning including United Healthcare, PepsiCo, Cisco, IBM, WiPro, Guardian Life Insurance and General Electric. Source: AZ Family

The employment outlook for the first quarter of 2013 is strong in the Phoenix area, according to a new survey from the Manpower Group.

"We're actually leading," said Manpower spokesman Frank Armendariz. "It is the second most positive outlook in the nation."

The report reflects optimism among employers. Eighteen hundred employers were surveyed nationwide, several hundred of those were in Phoenix. Employers were asked whether they plan to add jobs in the first quarter of 2013.

"More companies are planning to increase their staff,"Armendariz said. "Actually, 23 percent of the companies here in Phoenix are planning to increase. Only 3 percent are planning a decrease."

The first quarter 2013 Net Employment outlook nationwide is the strongest in five years, according to the report. The report also anticipates an increase in hiring among retailers, longer-term positions," he said.

Job seekers should not necessarily be too hopeful, however. "We are still in recovery mode, as far as the economy," Armendariz said. "More companies will hire, but we are still in a recovery."
